Hello John,

The Board has agreed to send their questions to my attention regarding the ongoing demonstrations, and I, in turn, will share them with the Service for a response.

Below are questions which were sent to me late Friday which I am hoping you can arrange to have replied to:

- Once the Cabinet issues orders under the declared Provincial State of Emergency, can the Chief tell us what additional powers the Police Service can bring to bear to address the illegal occupiers?
- Are the 1,800 officers requested earlier this week still be an adequate number to address the illegal occupation within the City under current conditions?
- If there is an eventual court injunction issued in Ottawa, (not unlike the one granted in Windsor to remove occupiers by force) would the Police Service have enough personnel with an additional 1,800 officers to undertake the forcible removal of occupiers?
- On Monday, Council passed by-laws focused on removing vehicles illegally parked in residential areas and addressing ongoing impacts of continued by-law violations by occupiers. Further, the Provincial State of Emergency might give the Police more ability to seize vehicles. Can the Service provide insight into the "materiel" need (such as tow trucks and personnel) necessary to address the forcible removal of illegally parked vehicles in the core.

- Does the Service have the resources to deal with further convoys that are projected to be coming this weekend?
- Do we have sufficient resources to protect schools from illegal protests?
- I see that in Windsor an injunction takes effect tonight at 7 pm against Ambassador Bridge blockade. Can we as a board, our board councillors and the city work to achieve an injunction against trucks blocking Ottawa municipal roads.

Thank you for your help in arranging a response.

Regards,
